Rapidly escalating water prices and newly enacted watering restrictions along with a desire to preserve our water and natural resources are driving the demand for these types of technologies. In an era of chronic droughts and water shortages, it is imperative for everybody to conserve water. Cyber-Rain is leading the way in providing smart technologies that not only save money and time for users, but also provide a tangible way to protect the environment. By monitoring weather conditions, the Cyber-Rain sprinkler controller enables more efficient watering, meaning that the system usually pays for itself in less than seven months.
